News Briefs

A new medical education program in the UCSF School of Medicine establishes an extension of the School in the Fresno-San Joaquin Valley region. This new medical education program is the result of planning shared by the University, legislators, the Veterans Administration, and community leaders. It is one of the largest commitments of UCSF to decentralized clinical teaching. Currently, third and fourth-year medical students who have requested clerkships in this latest UC-San Francisco affiliation will be assigned to the Fresno VA, the Valley Medical Center and other community hospitals, including St. Agnes', Valley Childrens, Fresno Community Hospital, Kaweah Delta District Hospital in Visalia, and to the Fresno Health Department.

While these are the principle instructional sites, many other community hospitals, health agencies, and individual practitioners, as well as grass-roots community action groups, will participate in developing and supplementing this complex teaching program for third and fourth-year medical students, interns, and residents. The need for primary care physicians in the Central Valley, with its many rural communities, is particularly acute. In response to this critical health services need, the medical education program is designed to prepare physicians in primary care, and will emphasize Family Practice, Internal Medicine, Pediatrics, Obstetrics and Gynecology, and Psychiatry. Appointed Associate Dean of the UC-San Francisco School of Medicine to direct the new program is David Werdegar, M.D.

That Man May See, a non-profit foundation organized to support clinical eye research, has received a grant of $300,000 to provide an electron microscopy laboratory in conjunction with a glaucoma research unit, according to Michael J. Hogan, president. The proposed glaucoma research unit is part of the Clinical Research Center for Eye Disease at UCSF and is composed of a group of investigators dedicated to clinical opthalmology where basic knowledge from laboratory research can be applied to human problems.

In a model for genetic counseling techniques, the University of California San Francisco has, for the past seven years, served over 1,000 California families through its Medical Genetics Center's innovative Satellite Genetics Clinics. The Center is directed by Dr. Charles Epstein, Professor of Pediatrics at UCSF, and is currently operating twelve satellite clinics. Closely coordinating work with Dr. Epstein is Dr. Mitchell Golbus, director of the Pre-Natal Detection Center.

The National Heart and Lung Institute has designated UC San Francisco as one of six medical complexes in the United States to become a pulmonary faculty training center. The others are: UCLA, UC San Diego, Johns Hopkins Medical School, University of Oklahoma Medical School, and University of Texas — Southwestern Medical School. The UCSF center will be located in the Cardiovascular Research Institute, which has been training fellows in this specialty since 1968. CVRI will enroll up to 22 new NHLI fellows in the fall. UCSF co-directors are Julius H. Comroe, M.D., UCSF Professor of Physiology, a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians and member of the National Academy of Sciences; and John F. Murray, M.D., UCSF Professor of Medicine and Chief of the Chest Services at San Francisco General Hospital. The training centers were established in an attempt to replenish the scarce supply of medical school faculty who specialize in pulmonary disease. Candidates will be physicians selected from medical school faculty across the United States. They will come to one of the centers for two to three years training.

A documentary crew from ABC-TV in New York is working on an hour-long documentary on the brain and neural sciences, in which several UCSF programs will be featured, including the work of John Heuser, Physiology; Charles Wilson, Professor & Chairman, Neurosurgery; Regis Kelly and his group in Biochemistry; and Ira D. Glick of Langley Porter.

Yuet Kan, Chief of Hematology at SFGH, and Mitchell Golbus, Director of the Prenatal Detection Program, UCSF, will be featured in an hour long documentary being produced by the British Broadcasting Company. Drs. Kan and Golbus have developed the world's first prenatal test to detect the inherited blood disorder, thalassemia. The test can also be used to detect sickle cell anemia and other blood disorders. The BBC television crew recently spent two days in Dr. Kan's laboratory at SFGH and also visited Dr. Golbus on campus.

A study of gallstone disease (cholelithiasis) is involving one hundred Northern California patients taking part in the program at San Francisco General Hospital to test a new medical treatment. The patients are referred by their personal physicians. David L. Earnest, M.D., Assistant Professor of Medicine, UCSF, is Director of the SFGH Gallstone Treatment Center, one of ten throughout the United States selected to participate in the approximately $8 million National Cooperative Gallstone Study. A total of 1,000 patients (100 at each treatment center) will be selected for the program, which is funded by the National Institutes of Health.

Upcoming!

The Common Opportunistic Fungi: A Workshop.
Saturday and Sunday, June 5 & 6.
Fungi which usually do not induce disease may do so in persons having altered host defense mechanisms. The isolation and identification of these fungi may possibly alert the physician to the underlying predisposing condition as well as aid in choice of therapy for the infection. This workshop will present the common opportunistic fungi seen in California. Presented by the Dept. Microbiology and Extended Programs in Medical Education, UCSF. For registration information call 666-2483. For program information call 666-4251.

Employee Development Division, Personnel Office: Sponsoring a course for supervisors to enhance their skills in interviewing. 727 Parnassus. Monday & Tuesday, June 14 & 15. 9 a.m.-noon.

Glaucoma Therapy.
June 10-12.
A course designed to provide the practicing ophthalmologist with an up-to-date resume of the current aspects of glaucoma therapy. The faculty and presentations have been selected to emphasize practical clinically useful methods of dealing with glaucoma patients. Problem cases derived from the faculty's experiences will be used to illustrate frequently encountered therapeutic problems. Presented by the Dept. Ophthalmology and Extended Programs in Medical Education, UCSF. Will take place at Quail Lodge, Carmel Valley, California.
For registration information call 666-2483. For program information call 666-4251.

22 Saturday

Division of Urology Grand Rounds: Controversy in Pediatric Urology. Douglas Stephens, Royal Children's Hospital, Australia; Richards P. Lyon; Emil Tanagho. San Francisco Hilton Hotel, Continental Parlor #8 in conjunction with American College of Surgeons. 9-noon.

Monte Carlo comes to Millberry on Saturday night, May 22nd. Committee on Arts and Lectures (CAL) will convert the Millberry Student Union into a Las Vegas-style gambling casino — roulette, dice and blackjack tables, dealers, live music — all of the trimmings for a fun night of gambling. Winners at the tables will receive prizes rather than money. Refreshments and gambling chips included in price of admission. Anyone interested in participating and getting involved in Monte Carlo Night to help secure prizes or to work on other committees, call the Program Department at 666-2019 and come to the CAL meetings every Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the Board of Governors Room in Millberry Union. Open to the public.

Alcoholism & Drug Abuse: 1976. Ninth annual conference sponsored by the Haight-Ashbury Free Medical Clinic. May 22-23, Cole Hall.
Each year the program reflects the current state of the art and provides a thoughtful look at coming developments.

24 Monday

Otolaryngology Grand Rounds: Treacher-Colins Syndrome. Francis A. Sooy, Chancellor & Prof. Otolaryngology. 214 S. 8 a.m.

Film Series (CAL sponsored): Ascent of Man: Knowledge or Certainty. 300 HSW. Noon-1 p.m. Free.*

CVRI Seminar: Apoprotein Composition of Very Low Density Lipoproteins of Human Serum. John P. Kane. 1364 S. 4-5:30 p.m.

Division of Urology Seminar: Repair of Vesicovaginal Fistula and Colonic Conduit. Udo Jonas. 300 HSW. 4:30-6 p.m.

SFGH Briefs

Charles E. Windsor, the new Executive Administrator of SFGH, will be a special guest at the Hospital's Annual Staff Dinner, Wednesday, June 9, at the hospital. Mr. Windsor assumed his duties at SFGH in late April. He was previously Senior Vice President for Operations, New York City Health and Hospitals Corporation, which operates 19 hospitals and four neighborhood health centers in New York City.

Renewal is currently being sought of the grant to the SFGH Trauma Center from the National Institutes of Health. Accomplishments of the Trauma Center were reviewed during a site visit May 5. Heading the 12 member peer review team was Dr. Emilie Black, Director of the Clinical and Physiological Program, National Institutes of General and Medical Sciences. SFGH was one of ten medical centers in the United States selected in 1971 for "the study of trauma and for improving methods of caring for critically ill and injured patients." The one-half million dollar grant was awarded to UCSF and to San Francisco General Hospital. Chief of the Trauma Center is George F. Sheldon, Associate Professor of Surgery. F. William Blaisdell, UCSF Professor and SFGH Chief of Surgery is Principal Investigator.

Dorothy M. Witherspoon, of the SFGH Crisis Unit, has been appointed to the California Vocational Nurses Board by Governor Brown.

A Bay Area Chapter of the National Psoriasis Foundation is being established. Those interested are urged to contact Mary Dunselman, R.N., at 666-4701. The first general meeting will be held June 3 at 7:30 p.m. at the Leopard Cafe, 140 Front Street.
